Reasons for comment:
Comments:	Good Afternoon I would urge the planning dept to stand fast on their decision to refuse the removal on the planning conditions regarding the trees on this site. [redacted] have destroyed and removed multiple trees along their boundary significantly changing the look of Torthill whilst destroying habitats that have been home to Foxes, Muntjac and various birds and squirrels. The area has seen a serious amount of clearing of largest trees, brambles and hedgerows. Check out Google earth for the before view. I notice today [redacted] is moving more fencing and enlarging the piece of land at the bottom of his garden that he says he intends to develop but is currently a waste land where he parks his car and van. Can I urge the planning department to not capitulate to this appeal and further more visit Torthill to see the destruction. My neighbour and myself have planted some shrubs and trees to try and replace the habitat but it only scratches the surface of the habitat loss. I have spoken at length to our local HDC councillors on this matter and would hope that we can enforce the protection of the remaining habitat

Kind regards
