To whom it may concern

Further to your request, we write with a query relating to the above plans and ask that, if the access area in front of the garage and extension are to be paved as indicated in the plan, will adequate drainage be done as the ground levels currently slope away and the assumption is that the new area will be flat, so where will the water drain to otherwise.

We ask the question purely based on the fact that our adjacent garden area will be somewhat lower and therefore runs the risk of being flooded, as there is only one small drain for the entire shared driveway as it is.

Yours faithfully
